Eel Pond (P. Wilmot)

report of the development committee

I am pleased to report that 2008 was another record-breaking year for fundraising at the MBL, a remarkable achievement, especially in light of the weakening economy. Thanks to the dedication of our staff and volunteers and the generosity of our donors, the MBL raised $30,891,818 in private support, a 45% increase over our record-breaking achievement in 2007.

Chief among our donors was The Howard Hughes Medical Institute (HHMI), which awarded $15 million in support of the renovation of Loeb Laboratory, home of the MBL's renowned life science training programs. HHMI has already committed $15 million in support of the MBL's education program over the past decade, including their most recent pledge in 2007 of $4,000,000. It is truly an honor to receive this extra vote of confidence in the value of the MBL and its transformational training programs.

Record commitments were also made by individual donors in 2008. Patricia and Charles Robertson pledged $2,000,000, establishing the Robertson Education Discretionary Fund. MBL Trustee George Logan and his wife, Harmon, endowed the Science Journalism Program and supported the Annual Fund with a gift of $1,600,000, and an anonymous donor awarded $1,500,000 to support Women in Ecological Science.

Foundations that have been extremely generous to the MBL in the past returned in 2008 to support the ever innovative Bay Paul Center. The Alfred P. Sloan Foundation awarded $1,215,100 to Center Director, Mitchell Sogin, for research entitled, "The Rare Biosphere and the Human Habitat," part of the International Census of Marine Microbes. In addition, the Bay and Paul Foundations awarded a $1,000,000 challenge grant to create the Faculty Support Endowment Fund. New foundations to the MBL showed their support in 2008 as well. The Harken Foundation of Chicago provided a challenge grant of $250,000 to help raise endowment for the Ecosystems Center's Semester in Environmental Science Program for undergraduates.

The year 2008 was also significant in the area of planned giving at the MBL. The legacy of two devoted MBL alumni and researchers, Arthur and Laura Colwin, continued with the receipt of a remarkable bequest valued at nearly $5,000,000.

Last year the Annual Fund saw a 47% increase, thanks to the inspired leadership of several board members. We hoped we could reproduce and even exceed those results in 2008. I am pleased to report that once again MBL Trustees, helped along by more than a thousand alumni, scientists and friends, made this happen with a record total of $957,764 in this all-important unrestricted category of funding. We look forward to breaking this record in 2009 by raising a landmark $1,000,000 for the Annual Fund.

As we reported last year, the MBL is in the early stages of a campaign to raise significant funds to advance initiatives in several important areas: Environment & Human Well-Being, Discovery Research & Education, Regenerative Biology & Medicine, Capital Projects, and Annual Operating Support. Many of these initiatives further our existing scientific and educational goals, while others expand our core expertise into new areas. Still others meld disciplines to tap emergent discoveries. Between June of 2006 and the end of 2008, the MBL raised an astonishing $65 million in support of these important initiatives.

Not included in the year-end figures was another momentous achievement in the life of the institution. Thanks to the efforts of Director and CEO Gary Borisy and Director of Development and External Relations Pamela Hinkle, the MBL actively sought support for its programs in the $1 billion Massachusetts Life Sciences bill that was signed into law on June 16, 2008. With broad-reaching support from legislators including Senate President

Therese Murray, Senator Robert O'Leary, Representatives Matthew Patrick and Eric Turkington, and countless others from around the Commonwealth, a $10 million authorization to fund infrastructure improvements in support of research and education at the MBL was included in the legislation. On November 17, 2008, Governor Deval Patrick held a press conference at the MBL to announce that the $10 million would be released in support of the renovation of Loeb Laboratory. Speaking about the $1 billion Massachusetts Life Sciences Act he said he was "... delighted to see part of this important funding put to use with the vital research being done at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole."

This first year of my tenure as co-chair of the Development Committee, along with Chris Weld, has been a phenomenal one for MBL fundraising. I am proud of what we've accomplished and wish to acknowledge the superb work by the MBL's Director and CEO, Gary Borisy, the external relations staff, and my fellow Trustees. It is, however, to our generous donors whose names appear on the following pages—as well as those who wish to remain anonymous—that I extend special thanks for your faith in, and ongoing support of, the Marine Biological Laboratory.

—Jeffrey Pierce, Co-Chair

major gifts

The MBL gratefully acknowledges the generous contributions of the individuals, foundations and companies who supported every aspect of our programs and operations in fiscal year 2008 (January 1, 2008 – December 31, 2008).

Gifts to MBL Programs

$1,000,000 and up

The Howard Hughes Medical Institute awarded $15 million for top-to-bottom renovations of the Loeb Laboratory, home of the MBL's renowned discovery courses. This award was leveraged through a $10 million commitment of state funds contained in the Massachusetts Life Sciences Act.

A bequest of $4,950,000 from the Estate of Laura Hunter Colwin was received in 2008. Laura and her husband Arthur Colwin were students at the MBL in the 1930s who later married and returned to conduct research at the MBL nearly every summer. In 2002 the Colwins made a gift of $2.3 million to establish the Laura and Arthur Colwin Endowed Summer Research Fellowship Fund in the fields of cell and developmental biology.

Patricia and Charles Robertson contributed $2,000,000 to establish the Robertson Education Discretionary Fund. Charles Robertson's mother was a student and researcher at the MBL and Patricia Robertson is a member of the MBL Board of Trustees, class of 2012.

George and Harmon Logan pledged $1,500,000 to endow the MBL's Science Journalism Program which has been renamed in their honor. The program provides professional science journalists, editors, and broadcast journalists with the opportunity to immerse themselves in the processes of basic biomedical and ecosystems research. They pledged an additional $100,000 over four years to the Annual Fund.

An Anonymous donor contributed $1,500,000 to support Women in Ecological Science. MBL Ecosystems senior scientist Zoe Cardon is the initial recipient of this support.

The Alfred P. Sloan Foundation awarded $1,215,100 for the period 2008-2010 to support research entitled "The Rare Biosphere and the Human Habitat." Mitchell Sogin, director of the MBL's Bay Paul Center, is the principal investigator of this study, which is part of the International Census of Marine Microbes.

The Bay and Paul Foundations awarded $1,000,000

Candle House (B. Liles)

challenge grant to create the Faculty Support Endowment in the Bay Paul Center.

$100,000-$999,999

The Ellison Medical Foundation provided $365,768 to support the Colloquium on the Biology of Aging held August 20-22, 2008; and $208,762 for the Molecular Biology of Aging course held August 4-22, 2008.

The Burroughs Wellcome Fund granted $622,000 to support the Physiology course from 2008-2010, the Molecular Mycology course from 2009-2011, and the 2008 Frontiers in Reproduction symposium.

The David and Lucile Packard Foundation awarded $600,000 to support research by Ecosystems Center senior scientist Jerry Melillo on the impact of biofuels on global climate change.

Robert and Margot Haselkorn contributed $500,000 to the Faculty Support Endowment in the Bay Paul Center, fulfilling one half of the matching gift requirement of the Bay and Paul Foundation grant listed previously.

The G. Unger Vetlesen Foundation renewed its grant of $350,000 to support the Bay Paul Center, MBL Marine Resources operations, and provide unrestricted funds.

Porter W. Anderson, Jr. contributed $200,000 to the Directors Development Fund, Annual Fund, and the Bernard Davis Scholarship.

The George Frederick Jewett Foundation awarded $150,000 to create the "Interoperability Digital Library," a project of the MBLWHOI Library to establish standards for data resources in the disciplines of geosciences and biodiversity.

Margaret C. and Francis P. Bowles pledged $130,000 to the Semester in Environmental Science endowment.

The Josephine and Louise Crane Foundation, Inc. awarded $100,000 to the Director's Discretionary Fund.
